H. L. Hall, attached to the department of Justice in El Paso, came from Marfa Tuesday morning with the details of the taking of Cuchillo Parado on Thursday morning. Mr. Hall left Presidio Saturday before the rebels had advanced to within fighting distance of Ofinaga. He said that he had talked with persons who had seen Pascuai Orozco, sr., with the rebel troops and while Gen. Orozco had not been seen, it was generally believed that he was with the body of 1400 rebels who had come from the T. O. ranch to Cuchillo Parado.

When Mr. Hall left Presidio Saturday the refugees were coming across the river from Ofinaga in anticipation of an attack on that town by the rebels. TWO HUNDRED REBELS ARE REPORTED KILLED

Gunymas, Sonora, Mex., Sept. 3 .- News reaches here that on last Friday a band of about 500 rebels went into Minos Nuevas and a fight ensued between them and the citizens, many less in number. At Minas Nuevas the Southern Pacific line of railroad runs through a canyon that is fenced with wire. After several hours fighting, the ammunition of the citizens was low and their strength spent, and it looked as if they could not keep the bandita at hay much longer. At this time Col. Jesus P. Diaz came overland across the mountains with several bundred men and planted a machine gun in the middle of the track and began firing, with the result that 100 of the rebels' horses were killed, another 100 horses captured, and about 250 rebels killed, according to federal report. Southern Pacific lineman Eugene Cameron, who arrived on the scene just as the rebels were fleeing, says that he counted 187 dend bodies strewn along the railroad track. These, the federals afterwards piled together and started a fire around, but they were but partially consumed. Three rebels were left hanging to the bridge. This defent seems to have served to cool their ardor for the time being, and in the menutime the Southern Pacific company has been exerting every effort to repair the 40 burned badges.

REBELS NOW HAVE CANANEA SURROUNDED

Cananea, Son., Mex., Sept. 3 .- Marauding rebels made a dash into the Cananea district today and cut all of the wires between this city and Naco. Three ralirond bridges were burned and the rails for a considerable distance on either side of these structures removed.

As soon as the news was reported, Cananca volunteers were called for and 200 men left to engage the rebels. The latter were reported as numbering about 125 men, all mounted.

This completely cuts Cananea off from the rest of the world, as the rebels burned the bridges between here and Nogales on Saturday and the track between Cananea and Naco was the only thing left. Now this is gone. There are no federal soldiers in Cananes, but a number of natives have responded to the call for volunteers and all the Americans, of whom there are several hundred, have been provided with arms by the company and declare their readiness to defend their homes against piliage and robbery by the reliefs

Many cities spent Monday night in total darkness, both electric and gas plants being flooded.

Among the large towns which suffered from the rise of water were washington. Beaver, Burgetistown, Canonsburg and several smaller places in the Chartiers, Cherry and Beaver valleys of western Pennsylvania, while in West Virginia, Colliers and the surrounding territory suffered a great loss.

The senator, explaining that in 1908, he endeavored to settle difficulties between the government and the Standard Oil company, declared he did so believing such a result would prevent the continuance of a panic started in 1997 and that the government could secure much better terms by a settlement than through the court.
